Liberals take majority

Wynne-win. PC Leader Tim Hudak cuts own job in defeat, NDP reel from big political loss

The Ontario Liberals won a majority Thursday, making Kathleen Wynne the province's first elected female premier and Canada's first openly gay premier.

It is the Liberals' fourth consecutive win and it was accomplished despite fighting the entire campaign against their rivals' claims that the Liberal government is corrupt.

After failing to convince enough voters of that claim, Tim Hudak, who led the Progressive Conservatives since 2009, announced he will resign.

At the Liberal leader's party in downtown Toronto, Wynne said the victory proved that Ontarians don't live with prejudice in their hearts.

"I am so proud to be the first woman elected premier ..." she said, and she was drowned out by supporters' cheers.

She promised to lead with integrity.

"You voted for jobs, you voted for growth, thank you for voting to build Ontario up," she said. "Elections aside, we live in one Ontario and our job is to build this province up for every single person."

With the Liberals' win the government will re-introduce the defeated budget, which promises a $29 billion-over-10-years transit and transportation fund and an Ontario Retirement Pension Plan beginning in 2017.

Wynne congratulated Hudak on "a hard-fought campaign" and thanked him for his leadership and service to the province.

Hudak's resignation comes after he spent the campaign branding the Liberals as irresponsible with the public purse and trying to convince voters he was the only leader unafraid to do what had to be done to save the province from economic despair.

"Nobody should mistake this result as an endorsement of the status quo," Hudak said of the Liberal victory in his concession speech in Grimsby, adding that Wynne had campaigned on change and she "will be held accountable if she does not deliver."

Andrea Horwath's New Democratic Party suffered a major political loss.

Horwath caused the government to fall by failing to support the Liberal budget after propping up the minority Liberals, while exacting legislative demands from the government, for three years.

Now the NDP will sit as the third party in a majority.

At press time, the Liberals were elected or leading in 59 seats, up from 48. The Tories dropped from 37 to 27 seats and the NDP held steady at 21.

Mayor Joe Fontana's criminal case is being decided by a superior court justice brought in from out of town. There's no jury involved. DAVE CHIDLEY/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fontana to learn his fate on Friday

Intent is key. Lawyer cautiously optimistic about verdict

SCOTT
TAYLOR
scott.taylor@metronews.ca

It's judgment day for Joe Fontana. London's mayor will learn Friday if he'll be branded a convicted criminal.

Here's what Superior Court Justice Bruce Thomas has been mulling over the past two weeks: Did Fontana forge a document with the intention of pocketing $1,700 in 2005, when he was a Liberal MP and cabinet minister?

Intent is key on the charge,

Fontana's lawyer, Gord Cudmore, said often during the four-day trial.

To be convicted on this charge, the Crown must prove that Fontana forged a document with the intention of committing a crime.

The document in question is a contract signed with London's Marconi Club in October 2004 for a July 2005 wedding reception for Fontana's son. The contract was doctored months later and sent to the House of Commons as a $1,700 expense claim for a Liberal event at the same club in February 2005.

Fontana has admitted he changed the date on the contract, the type of event, replaced his wife's signature with his own and submitted it

The charges

Mayor Joe Fontana is charged with:

- Fraud under $5,000
- Breach of trust
- Uttering a forged document for repayment with the word "original" scrawled across the top.

The reimbursement that resulted was later included in the payment for his son's reception, but the man in charge of booking events at the club at the time has testified no one ever told him exactly what to do with the Government of Canada cheque.

Fontana said he was very busy and in a hurry to file the claim for then-finance minister Jack Goodale's reception at the club. It was a stupid thing to do, Fontana has said, but it certainly wasn't criminal.

Thomas has several options. He could find Fontana innocent on all three charges or guilty on one or more of them.

Cudmore said the mayor and his legal team will be entering court tomorrow "cautiously optimistic" for an acquittal. "Two weeks is a long time to wait, but we're both looking forward to putting this behind us," Cudmore added, when asked about Fontana's state of mind.

Familiar faces: All four MPPs re-elected in London

Election. Matthews says it's time to pass the budget as Liberals get majority; NDPer Judy Bryant comes in second with a strong showing in her riding

mike.donachie@metronews.ca

They're back — all of them.

There was plenty of excitement but no surprises in London on Thursday as voters declared their choices for MPPs.

Everyone headed to Queen's Park is a familiar face.

Deb Matthews, winning London North Centre for the Liberals, immediately declared it was time to get back to work and pass the budget that triggered the election when the New Democrats withdrew support.

"This is an historic night," Matthews said at her victory bash at the Mocha Shrine Centre on Colborne Street.

"Ontario has elected decisively. We made history folks, we made history."

She said it was a celebration of "what a lot of people thought was highly unlikely. We are celebrating a (Liberal) majority government."

And Matthews added: "We are going to introduce that budget, and this time we are going to pass it."

Over at the New Democrats' party at Goodwill Enterprises on Horton Street, the crowd was going wild.

First to arrive was Peggy Sattler, who took London West from the Liberals in a by-election last summer and was seen by some pollsters as a doubt for victory this time around.

She need never have worried. She told her supporters: "I didn't think that anything could feel any better than last summer."

The shindig was swinging when returning London-Fanshawe MPP Teresa Armstrong arrived at 10:45 p.m.

It was like Beatlemania — with background music by the Beatles — as people screamed a welcome and Armstrong beamed: "Thank you, thank you, thank you."

In Elgin-Middlesex-London, the incumbent also was the winner again, with Jeff Yurek taking it for the PCs.

Seeing the forest city for the trees

ReForest London. Free tree wagon rolls through local neighbourhoods

mike.donachie@metronews.ca

If someone knocked on your door and offered you a free tree wouldn't that be great?

What if they even offered to plant it for you?

That's exactly what's happening in some London neighbourhoods, thanks to an initiative by ReForest London. Volunteers are leading the way as the new green wagons travel around the streets getting new trees into the ground.

"I was nervous at first," said Louise Hollingsworth, co-ordinator of ReForest London's Neighbourhood Tree Captain program. "But the wagon, and the colourful way that it's presented, helps.

"The first thing we say is, 'Can we give you a free tree?' It's been better than we had thought. It's so overwhelmingly positive we are a little afraid that we can't keep up with it because we haven't got enough neighbourhood tree captains out there."

Those captains are the ones showing leadership in neighbourhoods, encouraging people to help keep the Forest City leafy.

The statistic quoted again and again is that 40 per cent of plantable space in London is in backyards. That's why ReForest London is looking to Londoners to do their part.

The green wagons began their work in Woodfield, and in recent days have been making rounds in Old North, Old East,

Growing number

22.9%

If you look down on London from above, 22.9 per cent of it is covered by trees.

Argyle and Old South. More neighbourhoods will be added, and volunteers and donors have made sure there are more than 5,000 seedlings on offer.

There are also experts ready to come to community events to make sure people know how to care for their trees.

But more captains are needed to make it all work.

"If we had one person in each community that wanted to champion trees, then we would be much better off," Hollingsworth said.

Alleged predator appears in court

A London man accused of kidnapping two young girls, and sexually assaulting one of them, made his first appearance in court Thursday.

Police spokesman Const. Ken Steeves said the Crown will oppose Dieu Chau's release when he has a bail hearing, which could come as early as Friday but will more likely be next week.

Chau, 44, was arrested Wednesday on charges stemming from a May 24 incident. SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

London Health Sciences Centre. Local donor gives $700K to cancer program

A familiar face has made a big donation to London Health Sciences Centre's London Regional Cancer Program.

This time around, Joseph Carr, who's been a London Health Sciences Foundation donor for more than a decade, has given $700,000 to support a variety of initiatives.

Among the efforts that will be supported is cancer-imaging research.

The gift brings Carr's total donations to more than $1 million. He draws his inspiration to give from his mother, Mildred.

"When my father died, she raised seven kids on her own," said Carr, a teacher and horse breeder. "She didn't have much in the way of funds and dealt with hardly any income."

The money comes in the midst of a hospital foundation campaign to raise $200 million.

I Am London. Campaign tells immigrant stories to inspire and educate

You can thrive in this city, immigrants are being told as one of the main aims of a social media project.

I Am London is revealing 10 "faces" of London and its diverse population over four weeks, with a message to the entire community.

As well as trying to inspire immigrants to work toward their goals and get involved in the community, the campaign is reaching out to all Londoners, telling the real stories behind the city's immigrants.

"We are hoping that, through this campaign, we will showcase the diversity of London," said Huda Hussein, co-ordinator for the London-Middlesex Local Immigration Partnership project.

"We have asked immigrants who have settled in London to say why they chose London as their home, for example, how they can be engaged and how they can contribute to the community in which they have settled."

Last year, when I Am London began, it released all 10 faces and names at the same time, but this year they're being shown in twos and threes, to keep the public's attention.

Already, three faces have been shown.

Marc Forrat MIKE DONACHIE/METRO

Diversity

The people who are part of the campaign were chosen by the immigration partnership, with a focus on their diversity.

"We want the whole of London to learn more about immigrants, because sometimes we fear the unknown. But when we have their stories, we see that these people are just like you or me," Hussein said. "You can read more there about the background."

MIKE DONACHIE/METRO

Three perspectives

Faces of London

The first three immigrants named at iamlondon2014.blogspot.ca are Marc Forrat, a chocolatier from Brazil, Naema Farooqi, a magazine editor-in-chief from Pakistan, and Adam Garba, an entrepreneur from Nigeria.

"I'm proud that people think of me as, I guess, someone that could represent immigrants," Forrat said. "If people think of me as a success story that obviously makes me feel good."

Forrat, 42, grew up in Brazil, moving to France when he was 16. There, he met Elia, who was born in Portugal but lived in Canada, and they moved to this country in 2002. The couple have a daughter, Emilie.

Highbury Ave. Sinkhole caused by rusted pipe

A rusted drain caused a headache for commuters and the city Thursday when a sinkhole opened on Highbury Avenue.

The problem came up — or, more accurately, down — just north of Glanworth Drive, thanks to a corrugated steel pipe that was 32 inches across and 75 metres long.

"It failed underneath because its steel would have rusted out," said city roads director Edward Soldo.

A portion of Highbury was closed and traffic was detoured as city crews dug up the entire pipe to replace it with a concrete one.

Soldo said the closure will continue until probably Friday because "quite a bit of work" is involved in replacing the road surface. MIKE DONACHIE/METRO

Chippewas campaign to have voices heard

Enbridge. Chief wants to change the way companies do business on treaty lands

Quoted

"We want to get the word out and rally support. It's a campaign of knowledge and education."

Chippewas of the Thames Chief Joe Miskokomon

mike.donachie@metronews.ca

"We've been sidelined, to a large extent," Chief Joe Miskokomon says, and he wants that situation to change.

The chief of the Chippewas of the Thames wants people to listen. He and others are planning a campaign they hope will change the way companies and government bodies do business near treaty lands.

It began with a pipeline and a court case.

Last week, the Chippewas were granted leave by a federal court to appeal against a National Energy Board decision that benefits Enbridge. The oil company's pipeline — the 639-kilometre 9B between North Westover, Ont., and Montreal — is to have its direction of flow changed, after the board's approval in March.

But the Chippewas say they weren't properly consulted, and their tribal rights were denied. If full dialogue had taken place, their concerns about the environmental impact of the change of flow would have been heard, they say.

"The Crown has a lawful duty to consult and accommodate the First Nations," Miskokomon said. "What happened instead is that the (board) kind of took that role over for the Crown."

"We don't think the Crown can delegate that. It's a constituted right of ours to have direct contact with the Crown and not a delegated body of the Crown." But it goes beyond one issue, Miskokomon said.

A Chippewas of the Thames media release sums up what they want: "A new way of doing business that draws upon First Nations values and honours the original treaty relationship."

That should apply to corporations, too, Miskokomon said.

"We have a tremendous amount of wind turbines going up. There's been very little consultation on that, or accommodation."

Severe unemployment affects his people, Miskokomon stressed that nobody wants to block business, but added that the Chippewas and others are "going to be a player."

No one injured

Suspect sought in bank robbery at TD Canada Trust

London police are looking for a man accused of robbing a Richmond Street bank.

Police said the man approached a TD Canada Trust teller at 1137 Richmond St. at about 2:35 p.m. Tuesday, indicated he had a gun and demanded money.

He was last seen headed east on Broughdale Street in what's believed to be a white Honda Civic with tinted windows.

He's described as between 5-foot-6 and 5-foot-10 and about 25 to 30 years old. He has a slim build and was wearing a light blue hoodie, aviator-style sunglasses, dark ball cap and grey jogging pants, and was carrying a dark bag, police said.

Nuit Blanche. Festival brings contemporary art to London's downtown streets

mike.donachie@metronews.ca

Downtown's getting ready for a night like no other, and everyone's invited.

This Saturday is Nuit Blanche, the vibrant celebration of contemporary art, and there are dozens of attractions on offer.

"It's an amazing opportunity to support and experience the arts in London, and it's all free," said Alison Challis, co-ordinator for the event. "We get to fill the street with art, installations, structure, sculpture, projects and projections."

"It creates a magical vibe downtown, so people can come and explore."

And it really is free. The idea is to bring contemporary art to Londoners in the most accessible way possible and with as much variety as can be mustered.

The core of the event is Dundas Street between Talbot and Clarence streets, although there are events a little farther afield. The venues range from galleries to parks to alleys, and there's a promise that people can explore "unusual or forbidden spaces."

Nuit Blanche also follows a day of fun, with the Dundas Street Festival happening on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It will also have arts, music, performances and more, including many free family-friendly activities.

It all began in 2010 with a car-free day and has grown into a major celebration, said event co-ordinator Ryan Cra-

Highlights

Just a glance at nuit-blanchelondon.ca shows the wide range of attractions this Saturday, with more than 30 listed.

- Look out for Structure, Paint, Math and Making Out, in which James Kirkpatrick leads four local emerging artists in creating large sculptures and 3D paintings.
- Another cool event is the Night Light Postal Service, by Lefty Smudges and Wright Lloyd. They'll be taking notes around downtown, many of them being left hanging for passersby to find.
- Nuit Blanche runs from 7 p.m. Saturday until 1 a.m. Sunday.

Grad has job search down to a T

Rather than pound the pavement more than he already has, Jason King found a novel way to bring prospective employers to him on Thursday. The 44-year-old recently graduated from Fanshawe College with a degree in structural engineering and has spent four months job-hunting. He was working as a returning officer for Thursday's election and decided a "hire me" T-shirt might not be a bad idea. "On the back of the shirt it says 'innovative problem solver,'" he said. "I'm being innovative." SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

BlackBerry intercepts used in mob crackdown

Police in Quebec say they used intercepted BlackBerry communications to take down two alleged organized crime groups operating in the province.

The RCMP said Thursday more than one million private messages were intercepted and analyzed as evidence as part of an operation dubbed Project Clemenza.

Officials from the RCMP and Montreal Police said it is the first time this investigative technique has been used on such a large scale in a criminal investigation.

"This is the most important interception of this kind performed as part of a major investigation in North America," RCMP Supt. Michel Arcand told a news conference.

"One million messages were intercepted between 2010 and 2012 (and) the investigation also included a complex analysis process."

The arrests are aimed at dismantling two cells which police say took over after Operation Colisee seven years ago, an operation aimed at their predecessors.

Police described the cells as linked to Italian-based organized crime in Montreal.

Police said they arrested 31 people in Montreal, Quebec

City, Laval and Gatineau.

Some 200 officers took part in the operation under the guidance of the RCMP's Quebec detachment.

The accused face different charges that include gangsterism, conspiracy, drug importation, trafficking, possession, kidnapping, forcible confinement, possession of weapons and explosives, arson, extortion and assault. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Iraq. Islamic militants vow to march to Baghdad, say they'll impose Shariah

Islamic militants who seized cities and towns vowed Thursday to march on Baghdad to settle old scores, joined by Saddam Hussein-era loyalists and other disaffected Sunnis capitalizing on the government's political paralysis over the biggest threat to Iraq's stability since the U.S. withdrawal.

Trumpeting their victory, the militants also declared they would impose Shariah law in Mosul and other areas they have captured.

In northern Iraq, Kurdish security forces moved to fill the power vacuum — taking over an airbase and other posts abandoned by the military in the ethnically mixed city of Kirkuk. The move further raised concerns the country could end up partitioned into Sunni, Shiite and Kurdish zones.

Three planeloads of Americans were being evacuated from a major Iraqi airbase in Sunni territory north of Baghdad, U.S. officials said, and Germany urged its citizens to immediately leave parts of Iraq, including Baghdad.

The UN Security Council met on the crisis, underscoring the growing international alarm over the stunning advances by fighters from the militant group known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant, which aims to create an Islamic emirate spanning both sides of the border.

Manitoba. Winnipeg ER death must be ruled a homicide, lawyer says

Lawyers for the family of an aboriginal man who died during a 34-hour emergency room wait say an inquest judge must rule the death a homicide.

They have also asked the judge to recommend Manitoba call a public inquiry into how aboriginal people are treated in the health-care system.

Vilko Zbogor told Judge Tim Preston that failing to provide medical care to a sick person is akin to failing to provide the necessities of life.

"It was homicide," Zbogor said during final arguments Thursday at the Brian Sinclair inquest. "You just need to find that the death was caused by human contribution."

Police have already investigated the death but did not lay any criminal charges.

It's been almost six years since Sinclair, a double-amputee, died at Winnipeg's Health Sciences Centre after languishing in the waiting room for hours, vomiting and slowly dying from a treatable bladder infection. An internal report following his death found some staff assumed he was drunk and waiting for a ride or was a homeless man seeking shelter.

Murray Trachtenberg, another lawyer representing the family, said those racist assumptions led to his death.

The inquest didn't delve into why those assumptions were made or what to do to prevent them, the Sinclair lawyers argued. The Sinclair family lawyers withdrew from the inquest halfway through when the judge chose to focus on overcrowding in emergency rooms, but they returned for final recommendations.

World Cup revelry matched by rage

Turmoil in host cities.

Black Bloc adherents infect crowd angered by billions spent on sport

Protesters and Brazilian police clashed in São Paulo and Rio de Janeiro on Thursday ahead of the first World Cup match, but the demonstrations largely died down before kickoff.

More than 300 demonstrators gathered along a main highway leading to the stadium in São Paulo. Some tried to block traffic, but police repeatedly pushed them back, firing canisters of tear gas and using stun grenades. The flow of traffic to the arena was not blocked.

Later, a group of fewer than 100 protesters gathered near a subway stop about 13 kilometres west of the stadium. No protests were reported near the arena itself.

A few protesters suffered injuries after being hit by rubber bullets, while others were seen choking after inhaling tear gas. An Associated Press photographer was injured in the leg after a stun grenade exploded near him. CNN reported on its website that two of its journalists were also injured.

"I'm totally against the Cup," said protester Tameres Mota, a university student at the São Paulo demonstration.

"We're in a country where the money doesn't go to the community, and meanwhile we see all these millions spent on stadiums."

A masked man throws a stone toward riot police in São Paulo on Thursday during a protest demanding better public services and raging against the money spent on the World Cup tournament. RODRIGO ABD/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the crowd were anarchist adherents to the "Black Bloc" tactic of protest, a violent form of demonstration and vandalism that emerged in the 1980s in West Germany and helped shut down the 1999 World Trade Summit in Seattle.

Such Black Bloc protesters have frequently squared off against police in several Brazilian cities in the past year, as a drumbeat of anti-government demonstrations have continued since a massive wave of protests hit Brazil last year.

Meanwhile, about 300 protesters gathered in central Rio de Janeiro in another demonstration against the World Cup. Police started using tear gas and took a few protesters there into custody, as marchers took to streets to denounce lavish public spending on a sports tournament in a nation with profound social needs.

But that protest also mostly dissipated a few hours before the match.

The demonstrations in recent months have paled in comparison to those last year, when a million people took to the streets on a single night airing laments including the sorry state of Brazil's public services despite the heavy tax burden its citizens endure. Those protests were largely spontaneous and no single group organized them.

That's now changed, said David Fleischer, a political scientist at the University of Brasília. He said the recent protests have shrunk, because they are "very specific in their aims, so they are quite easy for the police to control."

Because the recent protests have been organized by established groups, there are leaders with whom the government can negotiate. Fleischer noted that federal officials recently convinced a large activist group of homeless workers to not demonstrate during Cup.

But remnants of protests will remain because people who adhere to the Black Bloc movement and other "anonymous groups are difficult to negotiate with because they have no leaders to dialogue with," Fleischer said.

Middle-Age Energy Booster

Doctors on the Dr. Oz TV Show said that the most frequent complaint they get is "Being Very Tired", some call it fatigue. They have no energy or interest to do anything. More food is not the answer. Drugs are not the answer either as the Johns Hopkins Medical School puts it: "The fact is, all medicines, whether OTC or prescription, carry some risk". It needs a "key" to rejuvenate your own natural systems that fell asleep. Bell provides that key with: Selenium, spermine and spermidine, which are polyamines found in radishes, cucumbers and oats as well as all human cells. Nothing could be more natural than topping off that supply. There is no risk. The Wayne State University researched these ingredients for years and Bell guarantees your satisfaction. It is all right to be skeptical and for that reason we show a few results below and have hundreds more, if you go on our website under #7 Erosyn, which has exactly the same ingredients. This rejuvenation means that most men and women may have youthful feelings again for their partner. Those who want it can resume their intimate relationship. We supply the proof that it works. If incontinence plays a role: McMaster University says that 65% of middle-aged women suffer with incontinence and this is the main reason why many withdraw from intimacy. This can be overcome within days by drinking the Bell Bladder Control Tea #4b available in the same stores as Middle-Age Energy Booster. No more rushing to the bathroom and no padding or diapers needed anymore. Many people wrote we changed their lives.

Will soccer outshine the protests?

The sun rose Thursday on a tropical nation hosting its first World Cup in 64 years. Nearly half the world's population, well over three billion spectators, are expected to watch soccer's premier event and get a glimpse of the country that in two years will host the Summer Olympics.

But just hours before play was to begin, it still wasn't clear which Brazil we would see. Would it be the irreverent nation known for its festive, freewheeling spirit? Or would it be the country that, for the past year, has been a hotbed of fury over poor public services, discontent over a political system widely viewed as corrupt, and deep anger over the $11.5 billion US spent on hosting the World Cup?

"The world is going to see multitudes cheering for soccer — but also demanding that our country change," Helen Santos, a school teacher, said as she walked home in Rio de Janeiro. "The world needs to see that we're a serious country. We're not just a nation of soccer, but a country striving and demanding the government provide better education and health care. The world needs to see the reality of Brazil, not just the sport."

Street protests have lessened in size since last year, when Brazilians staged raucous rallies against the government, overshadowing the Confederations Cup soccer tournament. For two weeks, dozens of places were roiled by unrest. Whether Brazilians have moved past such disruption is uncertain.

"I hope the soccer outshines the protests, but I also know there remains a climate of anger," said Edson Carvalho, an office assistant watching 10 barefoot young men play a pick-up soccer match in Rio's Botafogo neighbourhood. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brazil takes cup for sticker shock

What things cost in Brazil

Brazil protects its local industries by charging high tariffs on imported goods.

THE IPHONE 5s COSTS $649 IN THE U.S. BUT HAS A STARTING PRICE OF $1,250 US IN BRAZIL.

A PEPPERONI PIZZA WILL COST YOU $35 IN BRAZIL.

BRAZIL'S $6.28 BIG MAC IS AMONG THE MOST EXPENSIVE IN THE WORLD.

World Cup visitors, welcome to Brazil, land of soccer, sun and sky-high prices.

Unlike nearby Latin American nations where a tourist's U.S. dollar or European Union euro seemingly stretches forever, Brazil is astoundingly expensive.

If one's budget isn't immediately busted by the flight or the hotel, it will soon be done in by the $10 US caipirinha cocktail and the $17 cheeseburger. And those are the prices city-dwelling Brazilians saw even before the World Cup set off a new standard of sticker shock.

The dizzying prices are referred to here as the "Custo Brasil," or "Brazil Cost" — the mixture of high taxes and steep import tariffs, combined with bad infrastructure, a dose of inefficiency

Demand leading up to a big event like the World Cup naturally raises prices. But, since costs already were high to begin with, tourists should prepare to dig deeply into their wallets and not be too miffed to receive goods or services of inferior quality, said Rafael Alcadipani, a business administration professor at the Getulio Vargas Foundation, Brazil's top think-tank. "Anything you buy in Brazil will be more expensive than in the United States or Europe, but the quality is going to be worse," he said.

Hotel rates in many of the World Cup host cities more than doubled ahead of the tournament. Massachusetts-based TripAdvisor reports visitors to Rio will face the highest prices, with hotel rates averaging $445 per night. Even the more affordable host cities will set travellers back a good amount: $457 per day in Cuiaba and $477 in Sao Paulo.

"The Cup prices are ridiculous. Everything shot up. The only thing you can buy in Brazil is a bikini, a cachaca (Brazilian sugar cane liquor) and a pair of Havaianas (sandals)," said Gillian Santos, a Brazilian who now lives in Belgium. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's POM Wonderful news for juice maker

Sweet justice? Top U.S. court rules Pom can go forward with a lawsuit alleging a competitor's label is misleading

Coca-Cola's version of pomegranate juice is not quite the real thing, and a competitor has another chance to prove it in court.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday sided with juice maker Pom Wonderful in its long-running false advertising dispute with the Coca-Cola Co., a decision that could open the door to more litigation against food makers for deceptive labeling.

The justices ruled 8-0 that Pom can go forward with a lawsuit alleging the label on a "Pomegranate

Lower courts had ruled in favour of Coke because the label conforms to the law and to Food and Drug Administration rules. But the Supreme Court reversed that decision, finding that the juice label may technically comply with FDA rules but may still mislead consumers for different reasons.

CHEAP TRICKS AND OTHER ACTS OF GOD

1 World Cup. You say football; I say soccer. Whatever, it's the biggest sports tournament on Earth, and it finally got underway in Brazil, despite a melee of protests, strikes and various other failures to launch. The Canadian team is chronically unable to qualify for the tournament, so we have to hope for somebody else. This year's favourites are Brazil, Argentina, Germany and Spain, but why not root for Africa's Cameroon, which punches way above its weight, unlike Canada?

2 Dead heat. Another tourney that wasn't resolved before my column-writing deadline was Thursday's Ontario election. Voters seemed underwhelmed by the choices: the Liberals and Kathleen Wynne, the Conservatives and Tim Hudak, and the NDP and Andrea Horwath. Before results were in, pollsters were calling it too close to call. Of course, after blowing both the B.C. and Alberta calls, pollsters have a recent history of being wrong, so maybe they were just hedging their bets. Horwath is the Cameroon of Ontario politics, and her chances seemed about as good.

THE METRO LIST
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

3 Right, right, you're bloody well right. Speaking of politics, this is what it has come down to in the U.S.: An extreme right-wing Republican, Eric Cantor, who is also the Majority Leader of the House of Representatives, lost the primary, which is basically the nomination, to an even more extreme right wing Tea Party Republican, the appropriately named David Brat, who accused his seven-term rival of not being extreme enough. It worked, at least among the anvil chorus voting for Republican primaries in Virginia. "It's a miracle from God!" crowed Brat, revealing that God is registered to vote in Virginia.

4 Another day, another rampage. Hardly a day goes by without another shooting rampage, the latest a protracted gun battle on the usually bucolic seawall along Vancouver's trendy False Creek. Crazed gunmen and mass shootings have become such a common occurrence, we're almost numb. But it took a photo of Danny, the K9 companion of RCMP officer Dave Ross, to bring the tragedy of gun violence home. The photo, of Danny the German shepherd sniffing his master's hat and looking around for him at the funeral, went viral this week, and will continue to haunt us in the days to come.

5 There's always Justin Bieber. It's not quite comic relief, but it will do. Notorious Canadian twit Justin Bieber continues to make the wrong kind of news, this time for getting caught on video using the N word, not once but twice. It doesn't really matter that both incidents happened when he was 14 and 15. His goose is now pretty much cooked and he's barely out of his teens. Fresh out of PR spin, he's turned to God, and was recently baptized in a New York pastor's bathtub. Well, whatever works, but I suspect God is too busy helping the Tea Party Brat to take care of ours.

Pothole vigilantism goes artsy

The perfect pothole might not exist for many people — but for artist Jim Bachor, it's one with a nice oval shape. Bachor began filling potholes a little more than a year ago, after one in front of his house became a hassle. He doesn't just fill them with cement, though. He's turned pothole-filling into a public art project. He fills them with mosaics. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public art, practical outcome

While his art isn't a permanent solution to the problem, it's at least a small fix, he says. The city hasn't shut down his project, and some community members have expressed gratitude. Gerry Shaheen says Bachor and his crew are welcome anytime to fill potholes in his city. "I'll pave the way for them," Shaheen said with smirk. "No pun intended." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Designs

- Bachor uses the Chicago city flag design in his pothole art.
- Some versions hold phone numbers to local auto repair shops, while others simply read POTHOLE.
- His most recent installment — #21914 — pokes fun at the huge number of potholes that exist in the city.

METRO AUGMENTED REALITY

SEE THE NEWS COME ALIVE...

In this issue, you can find AR enhancements on page 10 in News, pages 13, 17 and 18 in Scene and page 25 in Sports

To see pages from Metro spring to life, simply download or update the Metro News app available from your device's app store and follow these three easy steps:

- Open the Metro News app on your smartphone or tablet device. Click the AR icon in the top right corner.
- Hold your device over any image that has the AR logo near it. Make sure you wait for the green scanning bar to read the image!
- Voilà! You should see the AR in action — like a video, slide show or mobile content experience. You can even move your phone away from the page and interact with the content directly on your device.

Augmented reality goes old-school

metronews.ca

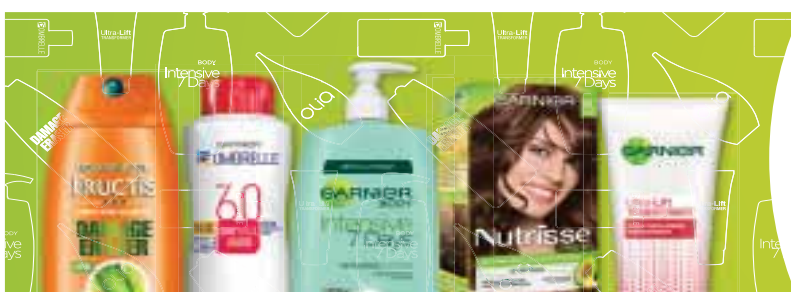

So augmented reality has only been around for a few years, and we're still a ways away from it catching on in a huge way.

However, that hasn't stopped animator Marty Cooper (@hombremcsteez) from already deciding to take the modern edge off the technology by using a few basic colours and some animation cells to give augmented reality a nice, vintage feel. As a bonus, you'll also get to meet the cutest baby sasquatch you've ever seen. (Via Gnarcal/YouTube)

Synopsis

The 21 Jump Street high school undercover cops Schmidt and Jenko (Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum) are back, but this time they're narco cops. That is until they botch an investigation into drug lord Ghost's (Peter Stormare) operation. Their failure gets them demoted back to the 22 Jump Street (they moved across the road) program. Jump Street's Captain Dickson (Ice Cube) sends them undercover, as unlikely brothers Brad and Doug McQuaid, to college to arrest the supplier of a drug named WHYPHY (WiFi). The bumbling, but self-confident duo infiltrates the college, but campus life threatens to blow apart their partnership.

Jump Street. Tatum and Hill's second outing as bumbling cops takes self-aware jabs at the business of sequels

Richard: Mark, Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum are producers on the new Jump Street film, which, I guess, explains all the jokes about how much everything cost.

At one point Hill actually says, "It's way more expensive for no reason at all."

I don't know how much the movie cost to make,

but the self-aware jokes did make me laugh even though it is essentially a remake of the first film, with a few more Laurel and Hardy slapstick gags and amped-up explosions.

What was your take?

Mark: Richard, I liked this instalment way more than the previous outing.

I loved all the self-referential gags, including the brilliant end-credits that hilariously make fun of the inevitable sequels that will follow.

I credit the directors, Phil Lord and Chris Miller, for the knowing pop culture sophistication they brought to the film.

They directed the first one, too, but they've grown more confident since their Lego Movie hit, which also tweaked the audience's expectations in a similar way.

RC: The end credit sequence, which maps out the next sequels from number 3 to installment 43 — they go to Beauty School and Magic School among other places of higher learning — is probably the funniest part of the movie.

The stuff that comes before is amiable, relying on the Mutt and Jeff chemistry of Hill and Tatum for laughs. It's boisterous and aims to please, but best of all are the self-referential jokes.

By clowning around about the difficulty in making the sequel better than the original, they're winking at the audience, acknowledging that this is basically a spoof of Hollywood sequels.

It's subversive, meta and kind of brilliant.

MB: Yep. Because I can see explosions and pratfalls in any "action comedy"; it's the subversive stuff that makes this movie stand apart.

The intergender fight sequence between Jonah Hill and Jillian Bell (who is incredible throughout the film) is as subversive a take on sexual politics and

"rape culture" that you will ever find.

It's these kinds of scenes that kept me laughing through the picture. The black stoner twins, played expertly by The Lucas Bros, were a masterpiece of writing and comic timing.

RC: I agree, but ill-timed jokes about Maya Angelou and Tracy Morgan were sore thumbs for me, but that's more coincidence, I guess than bad taste.

MB: I don't think those jokes were deliberate, but they sure broke the spell for me.

But then Ice Cube's comic rants got me back.

The Interview. James Franco and Seth Rogen in North Korea as assassins?

Two talk-show hosts are bound for a presidential chat in North Korea but find themselves given a conflicting mission by the secret service in The Interview.

Due this fall, the comedy sees James Franco and Seth Rogen's characters discover that Kim Jong-un loves their celebrity news show.

Seizing the opportunity to land an exclusive interview and sidestep from showbiz gossip into serious reportage, the buddies set off for North Korea.

But the CIA soon co-opts their travel plans by recruiting them as secret agents and giving them a licence to kill.

Lizzy Caplan of Masters of Sex and Cloverfield plays their long-suffering CIA handler, while Korean-American actor Randall Park (Larry Crowne, The Mindy Project) becomes Kim Jong-un.

Rogen and Evan Goldberg co-direct, just as they did on This Is The End.

The Interview is set for release on October 10 in North America, one year after filming started, with global release dates in the weeks that follow.

Why Australia is a perfect setting for a post-apocalyptic film

The Rover opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

The Rover. Aussie filmmaker takes to his home to film tale about a man out for revenge in a hostile world

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Australian filmmaker David Michod made quite a first impression in Hollywood with his 2010 debut, Animal Kingdom, so a lot of eyes were on him as he chose a followup. That choice is now here in the form of The Rover, a post-apocalyptic tale about a man (Guy Pearce) out for revenge against the guys who stole his car.

Australia seems to lend itself to these post-apocalyptic settings.

I love this kind of movie, people stranded in a really inhospitable landscape. And in some ways it doesn't get more inhospitable than Australia largely because 80 per cent of the country is desert and there are so few people out there. It's both epically beautiful and wholly terrifying when you're out there, because you know that only a couple of little things would need to go wrong and you could die. For instance, New Zealand doesn't really have any animals, so there's lots of beautiful stuff to look at, but it also makes it a little bit dull. I realized how much I love roaming in the bush in Australia because at any moment something that might kill you could pop out.

Of course, in The Rover it's more the people that might kill you.

In a way, it's a kind of geo-political inversion of the world in present day, because the world of The Rover in a way sort of exists on the planet today. It just happens to be in super-violent, resource-rich countries like Nigeria or West African states where there still is an infrastructure and official organization, but it's just incredibly cutthroat, and there is violence bubbling under the surface at all times.

There is a sort of sense of anger threaded through this narrative.

I can't remember at what point in the writing process this started to happen, but I started to funnel a lot of my anger and despair into the world of the movie and specifically into Guy's character — anger at the willingness that the people today seem to have to just let the world fall into disrepair solely to service the rampant greed of a very small number of people. You look at the invasion of Iraq on a certain level, and it would seem to me that the only reason that administration embarked on that ludicrous endeavour was to enrich their friends. I mean, to cause so much suffering in order to enrich a small number of people is pathologically evil. And it's difficult, when you think about these things, not to get angry.

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS

Baroque pop, hard punk rock, and some slow, melodic summer jams. Now that's variety!

I Know You Know/ Andrew Judah

A Kelowna, B.C. musician who describes his sound as "baroque pop". This is the second single from his upcoming album, Monster. Nice Philippines-shot video, too.

Multi Media World/Parkdale Hookers

This "Toronto-based business conglomerate, hedge funk and alternative rock group" (complete with a CEO and a Chief Marketing Officer) has been around since 2001. Echo Bubble Overdrive is the followup to a 2005 debut album.

You Can/ Tearjerker

If you remember noise-pop bands like Lush, Catherine Wheel and Slowdive, you'll appreciate what this Toronto trio does. You Can is a track from their latest release, an EP entitled Hiding.

See that symbol? It means you can scan this image with your Metro News app to listen to Alan's recommended songs this week.

Name. Tomodochi Life

For. Nintendo 3DS & 2DS

Rated. Everyone

It's up to you to create all the characters for this strange game of awkward conversations and bizarre costumes. Buying your villagers gifts and watching their antics is entertaining, but it's the mini-game quizzes, fantasy quests, and Frisbee tosses that actually give you something to do, and yet they only appear at inconvenient hours of the day. The rest of the time there's little activity and only your own characters to play with. There's nothing wrong with Nintendo playing at being surreal, but they've forgotten how to be engaging, too. KRIS ABEL

MMVAs. Kendall and Kylie crazy excited to host Much award show

Fresh off a teleprompter flub at the Billboard Music Awards, Kendall Jenner says she's relaxing ahead of her upcoming hosting gig with sister Kylie at the Much Music Video Awards.

"We don't want to think too much about it. If we think too much about it, we'll get really nervous and work ourselves up. We're just relaxing and getting excited," she said.

The teenage sisters — reality TV personalities and members of the Kardashian brood — say they have only seen snippets of the show in the past, but are expecting a "big, fun party."

Their first time hosting an awards show comes just weeks after Kendall appeared to misread the teleprompter at the Billboard Music Awards and joked, "I'm the worst reader, you guys."

When asked about the slip, whispering between the sisters and their manager could be heard, before Kendall replied, "Next question. Sorry."

But Kendall, 18, said she and Kylie are excited about the opportunity to host the MMVAs this Sunday.

Asked several questions about what viewers can expect, the sisters wouldn't share many details — urging fans to tune in and find out.

"We just want to make it fun. This is obviously our first time, and we're not perfect, so we just want to have fun with it and do the best we can," said Kendall.

The daughters of Bruce and Kris Jenner, the teens have been appearing on Keeping Up With the Kardashians for years, alongside half-sisters Kim, Khloe and Kourtney.

Asked which artists they're looking forward to seeing, both Kendall and Kylie said 17-year-old New Zealand singer-songwriter Lorde was at the top of their list. "I missed Lorde at Coachella so I really wanted to see her, so I can't wait to see her," said Kylie.

The MMVAs will be held Sunday outside CTV headquarters in downtown Toronto and be simulcast on Much and CTV. Other performers include Hedley, Imagine Dragons, Kiesza, Ariana Grande, Ed Sheeran and the Sam Roberts Band.

Crooner Sam Smith is a wide open book

'Just an honest person'. The neo-soul singing Brit recently opened up about his sexuality in a talk with Fader magazine

Emotive British neo-soul singer Sam Smith recently opened up about his sexuality in an interview with Fader magazine, sending minor ripples through the broad pool of music press on both sides of the Atlantic.

As Smith prepares to release his spine-tingling debut, The Lonely Hour, in North America this Tuesday, he acknowledges that he watched to see how his comment — that the album's lovedrunk gut-punches were inspired by a guy he fell for last year who didn't return his feelings — would reverberate.

"I don't read album reviews, but I've been reading the stories about my personal life — which is completely fine," the 22-year-old said in a recent telephone interview from London.

"I was expecting it. I said what I said for a reason. And yeah, it's interesting just to read, isn't it? The whole past few years have been interesting, just to see what the world is like sometimes."

And in the hurricane of interviews and coverage, does Smith feel accurately portrayed?

"Oh, one million per cent," he replied. "You're getting my personality spot-on. I am highly emotional and also very loving and caring and I'm just an honest person.

Sam Smith is fine with his personal life being public. THE CANADIAN PRESS/CONTRIBUTED

"And I think people are feeling that honesty."

They're certainly feeling some element of Smith's forward-thinking sound, which marries his expressive, opulent vocals to elegantly uncomplcated backdrops, ranging from the dignified piano and strings of Stay With Me to the buoyant electronics of Money on My Mind.

Both those tracks have topped the chart in the U.K. — and his Naughty Boy collaboration La La La breathed the same rarefied air — while Stay With Me has climbed to No. 10 in Canada, too.

His success at home isn't necessarily surprising — he received both the BBC Sound of 2014 Award as well as the prestigious Brit Awards Critics' Choice trophy — but he's stunned at the quick development of his career stateside, where Brit artists typically face a more arduous path to success.

A goosebumpy choir-aided performance on Saturday Night Live in March certainly helped — Smith, by the way, says host Louis C.K. was "so lovely" — but there's also the fact that Smith draws from predominantly North American influences, citing Etta James, Joni Mitchell and Beyoncé (always Beyoncé) as the artists he listened to most while making his record.

Still, Smith concedes that the attention is a little overwhelming. He's only years removed from attending high school in the sleepy commuter town of Bishop's Stortford. He moved to London at 18 and wrote his debut album two years later while mired in a deep funk.

"(Life) was pretty lonely," he said of first moving to the city. "London's a big place. All my friends were back where I'd grown up in the countryside. And also I fell in love with someone who didn't love me back when I wrote the album — which probably made it easier to write music but harder to live life." THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's the circle of life. The Lion King spinoffs will star Simba and Nala's cub

The Lion Guard, which will air in 2015, is set to be the first of a series of spinoffs. AFP

Starting in 2015, Disney will launch a series of TV spinoffs of its 1994 animated movie. Kion, Simba and Nala's second-born cub, will be the star of a new TV movie slated to air on the Disney Channel.

The Lion King was a smash hit with moviegoers when it debuted in 1994, bringing in nearly $800 million at the global box office. Twenty years later, Disney is hoping to prolong the success of the franchise with The Lion Guard.

The forthcoming TV movie, scheduled to air in 2015, will follow Kion and his troop of lions responsible for protecting the jungle and the Lion Kingdom. The spinoff will include some of the iconic characters from the original feature. Additional related spinoffs are expected to follow in 2016. AFP

Don't get too attached to HBO's True Detective

Nic Pizzolatto. Show's creator says doing the show is such hard work that he can only see it going on for three years max

The creator of HBO's dark and brooding crime drama True Detective says fans of the popular show had better not get too attached over the long term.

"Each season I'm essentially creating a brand-new TV show and it can't have any growing pains like a regular first season. It has to work right out of the box and that's incredibly exhausting," Nic Pizzolatto said in an interview Wednesday at the Banff World Media Festival.

"I'm writing every episode, so I can't imagine I would do this more than three years. I'd like to have a regular TV show with fixed sets and regular actors," he said with a chuckle.

The first season starred Matthew McConaughey and Woody Harrelson, who were both executive producers, as well as Michelle Monaghan, Michael Potts and Tory Kittles. It used multiple timelines to trace the hunt for a serial killer by two Louisiana State Police Criminal Investigations Division homicide detectives over 17 years.

Pizzolatto said he's written

Woody Harrelson and Matthew McConaughey on True Detective. HBO

two scripts so far that's he's happy with. But he has a message for people who believe rumours about who will be cast in season 2.

"Not a single rumour about casting that has been printed anywhere has any truth to it whatsoever. I've seen entertainment reporters say 'my sources say' and there are no sources. There's me and two other guys and they don't even know what I'm doing," he said.

"We haven't approached anybody yet. When I get back we're going to be meeting with directors and get the casting process into full gear," said Pizzolatto.

"We have four primary POV (point of view) roles we will really need to focus on and once those are in place we'll know the shooting schedule for sure. Right now we're planning to start in the fall."

The newfound attention and success has been a bit difficult for Pizzolatto, who is notoriously reclusive and does his best to avoid any social media.

"I'm pretty hard to actually get a hold of by design," he said.

"This has all been very new to me and what I've had to do is just find a distance for myself. We got here by me working in a vacuum towards my own vision for better or worse and then not compromising on it," said Pizzolatto.

"I'm not going to allow that sort of speculation to influence the way I work, and at the same time in order to work the way I work I cannot be engaging total strangers on the Internet to explain my work to them. I even kind of think it denigrates the work a little bit."

It's all eyez on Broadway as musical full of Tupac songs takes the stage

Holler If Ya Hear Me.

Production follows fictional storyline about young men on the streets of the Midwest

T. MICHELLE MURPHY
Metro World News

The buzziest production hitting Broadway is Holler If Ya Hear Me, which adopts the music and lyrics of celebrated rapper Tupac Shakur. Although the soundtrack will be familiar, the plot follows a fictional storyline. It's about young men in the Midwest struggling with love while navigating life on the streets. We spoke with lead Christopher Jackson (Bronx Bombers, After Midnight) ahead of opening night, June 16.

Everyone is asking: If it's not a Tupac biography, what's Holler actually about?

It was inspired by Tupac's music and written by Todd Kreidler, about a character named Vertus who is waking up and coming to terms with the fact that his best friend is back from jail. He had a really big problem with some of the decisions he had to make regarding his friend and his girlfriend and his mother, and on behalf of his brothers, so lots of stuff happening in a very short amount of time.

Is it intimidating to present Tupac's music in this format?

No, it's fun! I've been a fan of his my whole life, so to be telling the story using his lyrics and his music is pretty fulfilling for me. As an actor who grew up in the hip-hop generation, it's great to be a part of another show that highlights this culture in the '70s and exposes a world to the world of Broadway, the storytelling aspect of what hip-hop really has become and all it has been.

Holler If Ya Hear Me opens on Broadway Monday. CONTRIBUTED

How does hip-hop fit on Broadway?

Hip-hop is obviously one of the greatest cultural movements of my generation. I think it's great theatre just on record, in terms of the storytelling aspect, the personalities that exist in it, the musical influences and the way that it's affected just about every aspect of our culture. I think it's the natural progression to see it on the Broadway stage ... Of course there are more traditional styles, musically, but to characterize something as a Broadway show, I think that whole paradigm has shifted. You've got jazz musicals like After Midnight, you've got hip-hop like In the Heights. I think finally Broadway is starting to reflect our culture in a larger sense and developing a larger audience in the process.

And you're introducing his music to a new generation. A lot of people bring up the fact that it's the young people that will come out — but folks in their 30s and 40s and even their 50s listen to hip-hop as well. It's always just sort of been seen as a young culture, but Jay Z's 38! And he's arguably one of the most popular artists in the world. I don't think that it's just for 15-year-old kids.

After Gourmet, a Delicious foray into fiction

Ruth Reichl. Former editor-in-chief finds inspiration for her first novel in old letters from her food magazine days

When Gourmet magazine was shuttered after almost 70 years, editor-in-chief Ruth Reichl found an old filing cabinet that was filled with letters — mostly complaints and requests for recipes. They inspired her to write a series of fictional missives that ultimately formed the basis for her first novel Delicious!

"I wrote the Lulu letters in one fell swoop," said Reichl, referring to the book's 12-year-old cooking enthusiast who writes letters to chef James Beard during the Second World War. "Her voice was so real to me. I had been doing a lot of research into World War II because it's a period that interested me. I can't really explain why I did it, but I did."

After Reichl's contractual

Ruth Reichl, the former editor-in-chief of Gourmet magazine, has written her first novel, Delicious! THE ASSOCIATED PRESS obligation to Gourmet was complete, she "went home and cooked for a year." Then her editor suggested she write a novel. Reichl decided to draw on the letters to tell the story of protagonist Billie Breslin, who leaves her family in California to move to New York for a job at food magazine Delicious!

Reichl, who grew up in Greenwich Village and helmed Gourmet for 10 years, takes the reader on Billie's food journey, from the test kitchen at the magazine to restaurants to artisanal shops. Then, when Delicious! is abruptly shut down, Billie finds Lulu's letters — which help her understand various issues in her own life.

Reichl, who has received six James Beard awards, knew Beard personally.

She dedicates the book to Beard's assistant, Marion Cunningham, with whom she was close. "I invented Lulu, but I think if there had been a Lulu, he would have written back. He was generous to his readers and I think he would have loved this little girl."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

A ripe old forage

As part of her research, Reichl took a class on foraging, which she imagined would be a natural thing to do with war rationing.

- "It's fascinating how much wonderful edible stuff we're surrounded with that we just ignore all the time. ... The history of milkweed just kind of blew me away. The foraging teacher said it's edible in all its forms."
- "So I didn't have a problem going out and cooking with that floss and then I discovered that during World War II they actually did enlist schoolchildren to go out and gather the floss because they needed it to make life preservers because they couldn't get kapok anymore. It came from Japan."

Sizzling summer book puts the heat on marriage after mistress

A bumpy road

Courtney Maum COLIN LANE

"I remember thinking that people who are married or think about marriage a lot would like this book. ... It's a bumpy road. Marriage is freaking awkward. You're not psyched after eight years to get into bed with the same person."

Author Courtney Maum

Through a keyhole darkly. Novel about cheater who tries to woo back wife is not your typical beach read

EMILY LAURENCE
Metro World News

It all started with a note taped on the outside of a French art gallery. The note read (in French), "Mr. Architect, you were wearing an elegant hat and you wanted to buy the blue bear. Please contact me." Courtney Maum was living in Paris at the time and experiencing years of writer's block, but that one note sparked the idea for her new extremely buzzy novel, I Am Having So Much Fun Here Without You.

The protagonist is a British artist named Richard who paints rooms as they appear through a keyhole, but he is more obsessed with pining over his ex-mistress than his art — or his wife. He starts regretting his affair about the same time his wife is done with him. "In my family history, everyone cheated on everyone else and got divorced. I found myself wondering, 'Did anyone try to work it out?'" Maum tells us.

Because the book addresses infidelity, early reviewers and readers are dissecting it, trying to pull marital lessons from these fictional characters. But that doesn't intimidate Maum. "I'm pretty flattered by that," she says. "I remember thinking that people who are married or think about marriage a lot would like this book ... It's a bumpy road. Marriage is freaking awkward. You're not psyched after eight years to get into bed with the same person," she says.

Richard has many other flaws — besides the whole having a mistress part — but as a reader, you can't help but root for him. Finding the balance of creating a character who was funny, dark, flawed and likable all at the same time wasn't easy for Maum. "When I wrote the first version back in 2002, I got a lot of rejection letters," she says. "All the editors thought Richard was too unlikeable. At first I just thought they just weren't risk takers, but when I read the manuscript again 10 years later, I realized they were right." Maum says she wrote as if she was sitting there with him and his wife in the kitchen with the baby upstairs. "I wrote with my heart," she says.

Maum grew up in a conservative city in Connecticut, lived in France for five years and now splits her time between Paris, New York City and the Berkshires. Immersing herself in cultures all with vastly different views on marriage seems to have greatly influenced Maum, and her novel is stronger because of it. This book may not be the feel-good read of the summer, but it will stick with you.

Bieber's flip-flops Instagram love note

Justin Bieber ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Social media is the bane of the fickle heart, as Justin Bieber is proving with his erratic postings pertaining to on-again, off-again girlfriend Selena Gomez.

While it has seemed that the couple had finally split for good in recent months, Bieber doesn't seem so sure. Just this week, he posted a close-up photo of the two in an embrace with the caption, "Our love is unconditional."

Suggesting a tentative Romeo, he quickly deleted the posting — but not before many of his 16 million Instagram followers screen-grabbed it and re-posted it.

Out of problems, LiLo turns on freckles

Lindsay Lohan is looking to turn over a whole new leaf, and that apparently involves changing one very iconic part of her image. "She's always loved her freckles — well, pretended to, anyway — but now she's decided it's time to get rid of them and she's looking into having them either bleached or lasered away," a source tells the National Enquirer.

"Lindsay is known for trying new things, but she's shocked friends and family members by suddenly getting irate over her freckles."

Card countin' Affleck gets kicked out of Windsor casino, to the surprise of no one in particular

A day trip to Caesars Windsor turned into a dark night for Ben Affleck last month.

According to Radar Online, the 41-year-old actor took a break from filming Batman v. Superman in Detroit to hit the Canadian casino on May 31.

"He sat down and played for roughly 20 minutes before security heard he was there. They made the Affleck is a well-known card shark, having been banned from casinos in Las Vegas for counting cards; his reputation appears to have preceded him at Caesars.

The Word

Pippa embarks on bike race across this side of the pond

MELINDA TAUB

Metro World News in New York City

Next time you're driving in America, glance at the bike lane. Do you see a lovely butt and very shiny hair? You may be sharing the road with a princess-adjacent socialite. Beginning June 15, Pippa Middleton is biking across America.

Pippa and her brother James Middleton are participating in the Race Across America, a cross-country bicycle race from Oceanside, Calif., to Annapolis, Md. They'll be part of an eight-person relay team with their friend James Matthews, raising money for the foundation named for James' brother Michael Matthews. Michael Matthews passed away at the age of 22 while descending from Mount Everest.

The foundation begun in his name raises money for education for poor children around the world.

If you want to cheer on the Middletons, I would aim for the nice flat Illinois bit to see her at her best. I imagine the Rockies are terrible for hair shininess. Of course, Pippa's part of an eight-person relay team, so you might spot a random rugged Englishman instead of Her Buttiness, but those are nice too.

Liquid Assets

Colour your glass pink

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Pink is the new white when it comes to casual back deck sipping wine. Rosé has been the warm weather go-to for Europeans for years and Canada is starting to catch up.

Sadly, our opinion of blush wines has been influenced by white zinfandel: a popular, but polarizing, version that's typically confectionary and usually sweet (most rosé is dry). Though pleasant enough, their reputation as a simple tipple for those new to wine hasn't done classic rosé styles any favours.

A rosé's pink hue comes from dark grape skins coming into contact for a short while with the juice. The longer they're together, the darker the wine.

Spain has a history of rosé production using indigenous grape varieties. The Marqués de Cáceres 2013 Rosado ($13.95 - $16.29) is made from tempranillo and its balance of juicy, berry fruit with a refreshing dryness is a benchmark. As well as tasting great, rosé wines are fantastic with food — especially if the dish is eclectic or has an aggressive, dominating flavour.

Expect grate-ness

Grilled Caramelized Onion and Feta Pizza. Don't limit this family favourite to a hot oven. It can easily be made in your backyard

Onions are a bit of a reflex buy for many. Every time these people go to the grocer they always buy a bag of onions. They're a kitchen staples so you must always be about to run out, right? It's a good theory. But if that was the case, you wouldn't currently have 15 pounds of onions on the counter.

That's where this grill-friendly way of using a whole mess of caramelized onions comes in. The pizza is topped with onions and garlic, spiked with caraway seeds and golden raisins, finished with roasted red peppers, pine nuts, and crumbled feta for a kind of Middle Eastern take on grilled pizza

1. Set the pizza crust, in the bag, on the counter to come to room temperature.

2. Meanwhile, in large, heavy pot, such as a cast-iron Dutch oven, over medium heat, melt the butter. Add onions and cook, stirring often, for 20 minutes. Stir in raisins, garlic and caraway seeds, then cook another 3 minutes, or until onions are significantly reduced and caramelized. Stir in the red peppers, then transfer the mixture to a bowl and set aside.

Ingredients

- 20-oz ball purchased pizza crust
- 2 tbsp butter
- 2 medium yellow onions, thinly sliced
- 1/3 cup golden raisins
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tbsp caraway seeds
- 12-oz jar roasted red peppers, drained and sliced
- Olive oil
- 1/3 cup pine nuts
- 1/2 cup crumbled feta cheese

3. When the onions are done, heat the grill to medium-high. On a lightly floured counter, roll the pizza dough out to a 14-inch round. Brush the top of the dough with oil, then transfer it to a large plate or platter for carrying it to the grill. Have your remaining ingredients prepared, then bring everything to the grill.

4. Flip the dough onto the grill, oiled side down, and cook for 5 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and puffed. Reduce the heat to medium-low, then brush the top of the dough with oil. Use tongs to flip the dough.

5. Spread the onion mixture evenly over the crust, then sprinkle it with pine nuts and feta. Cover the grill and cook for 4 to 6 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and the feta is softened. Serve immediately.

Neymar's brace keeps party jumping in Brazil

World Cup. Hosts open tournament with 3-1 win; Croatia shaken by controversial penalty

Neymar gave Brazil a winning start to its home World Cup, scoring twice to lead the host nation to an unconvincing 3-1 victory over Croatia in the opening game on Thursday.

Brazil had a disastrous start when defender Marcelo found his own net while trying to clear a low cross by Ivica Olic in the 11th minute, but Neymar then showed why the nation's high hopes are all pinned on him.

The 22-year-old forward equalized in the 29th minute, clearing a defender in midfield before making a run toward the edge of the area and firing a perfectly placed low shot that went in off the post.

The game turned on a controversial penalty awarded by Japanese referee Yuichi Nishimura in the 71st minute when striker Fred went down inside the area under minimal contact from defender Dejan Lovren.

Neymar scored from the spot and the Croatians were furious.

"If that was a penalty, we should be playing basketball," said Croatia coach Niko Kovac. "Those kinds of fouls are penalized there."

"That is shameful, this is not a World Cup referee. He had one kind of criteria for them and another for us. The rules were not the same," said Kovac.

He's just being honest

"I wouldn't say it was the best game, but it's the World Cup debut."

Brazilian player Oscar critiquing Thursday's match

As Croatia searched desperately for an equalizer, Oscar added to the lead in the first minute of injury time with a toe poke from just outside the penalty area.

Croatia had a few good chances toward the end and had a goal disallowed in the 83rd after the referee ruled Olic had fouled Brazil goalkeeper Julio Cesar.

The host nation hasn't lost in the opening match in the last nine World Cups. South Africa was held by Mexico to a 1-1 draw four years ago.

A draw would have been a huge disappointment for Brazil, which had won its opening match the last eight times. The five-time champion entered the home tournament having won 15 of its last 16 games, includ-

Cristiano Ronaldo

Portugal star taking precautions

Cristiano Ronaldo cut short a training session with Portugal on Thursday, leaving the field with an ice pack over his left knee — indicating that his tendinitis may still be bothering the star forward.

Ronaldo trained with the rest of the team for about 15-20 minutes doing physical exercises but then did not take part in the rest of the session with full ball drills.

Instead, he stretched on his own and signed a few shirts for fans before going to sit on the bench. When he left, he had an ice pack over his left knee.

Ronaldo has been bothered by left leg injuries ahead of the World Cup, and was sidelined for two weeks with tendinitis in the knee and a thigh problem.

However, Portugal midfielder Joao Moutinho said there was nothing to worry about concerning Ronaldo's health.

"Ever since he started to train with us he has been 100 per cent like the rest of us," Moutinho said. "Everything is fine with him... The ice is normal after training."

Dale Hunter again passed over as Canada's world junior coach

Knights boss better. Official choice Benoit Groulx's record looks mediocre by comparison

DAVE LANGFORD
dave.langford@metronews.ca

London Knights' Dale Hunter has once again been overlooked for the head coach position with Canada's under-20 team at the world juniors.

And yet again, it makes no statistical or performance sense to keep the job away from him.

This time, the posting went to Gatineau Olympiques' head coach Benoit Groulx, announced Thursday at a news conference in Montreal. The challenge is to end Canada's five-year gold medal drought.

Dale Hunter has been shutout of a chance to coach the Canadian team at the world juniors.

DAVE CHIDLEY/THE CANADIAN PRESS

This year's 11-day world juniors will be in Montreal and Toronto, opening Dec.

26 in Montreal and ending with the gold-medal game in Toronto.

Groulx, 46, was an assistant coach last Christmas when the Brent Sutter-led Canadian juniors finished fourth and out of the medals in Malmo, Sweden.

He was handed the job once before, in 2009, only to relinquish the duties when he was hired as the head coach of the AHL's Rochester Americans.

Groulx lasted two seasons in Rochester and had an under-500 record when he left, returning to Gatineau.

With Gatineau, Groulx has failed to make it to the Memorial Cup tournament in four seasons. Before going to Rochester, he reached the Cup tournament with Hull and Gatineau but didn't win any championships.

Hunter, meanwhile, won the under-18 Ivan Hlinka tournament last July in Europe, showing that he could play nice with Hockey Canada. He also interviewed for the job given to Groulx on Thursday.

to become head coach with the NHL's Washington Capitals. He had a 30-23-7 record and came within one win of reaching the conference finals, before choosing to return to junior hockey.

Hunter and his brother Mark have taken the Knights to the Cup the last three seasons, including this season as host team. Dale Hunter won the 2005 Cup in London.

Dale Hunter's consistent record of success includes the fastest to reach 500 victories in OHL history, 100 points or more in eight of the past 11 seasons and a 70-plus per cent winning percentage.

Hunter comes out ahead in any comparisons, with winning the most important. And one more time, he doesn't get the job.

And that, ladies and gentlemen, is just silly.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

Don't get uptight if someone says something you disagree with. Stay calm, tell your side of the story and then listen to theirs. Don't be surprised if what they say makes sense.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You'll be in an impulsive mood today and there is a danger you might fall out with someone you should be on good terms with. Don't start a war of words just because you don't care for the way they do business.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Don't let others dictate to you because once they get the idea that you can be ordered about they will make your life a misery. Make sure they know you can bite as well as you bark.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

If you allow yourself to be talked into doing something you don't want to do today, you will regret it for weeks or months to come. There's no easy way to tell people you can't help them. Just say "no".

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

The full moon could have you doing things and saying things that will cause problems of a romantic nature. Handle affairs of the heart with a great deal of care over the next 48 hours.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Because today's full moon cuts across a powerful angle of your chart you must be ready for those around you to overreact in some way. On the home front there will be times when logic goes out the window.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You seem a bit excitable but that's OK — most likely nothing bad will come of it. In fact this looks like being a good time for you, especially if you are traveling or planning a vacation.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

There is no reason you should not go out and have a good time but that does not mean you have to buy drinks for everyone. You have been far too generous of late.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The full moon in your sign could see you acting out of character today and you may even make a fool of yourself. But what does it matter? It's all good, clean fun.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may not be able to make sense of what is happening at the moment but don't worry. You aren't the only one who is having a hard time getting a grip on reality. Once the full moon fades all will be revealed.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The more you socialize now, the more likely it is you'll learn something to your advantage. Before the day is over you will be good friends with someone who shares your beliefs, ideals and taste for adventure.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Resist the temptation to tell an employer what you really think of them today. It won't work out right. If you cannot say something nice then it might be wise to say nothing at all. Think of your future. SALLY BROMPTON
